Dr. Jonathan Mermin on reversing the STD epidemics:

“STD prevention resources across the nation are stretched thin, and we’re beginning to see people slip through the public health safety net. Turning the STD epidemics around requires bolstering prevention efforts and addressing new challenges – but the payoff is substantial in terms of improving health, reducing disparities, and saving billions of dollars.” - Dr. Jonathan Mermin, Director of CDC’s National Center for HIV/AIDS, Viral Hepatitis, STD, and TB Prevention
