Q24.   As you may know, on a regular basis, Congress must pass bills that authorize the federal government to spend money. When that legislation expires, the government must shut down until Congress passes a new spending bill.

Suppose the federal government had to shut down this Friday because Congress did not pass a new spending bill. Would you view a government shutdown as a crisis, as a major problem, as a minor problem, or as not a problem at all?

Major problems	41%
Minor problems	28%
No problems at all	12%

METHODOLOGY

A total of 1,009 adults were interviewed by telephone nationwide by live interviewers calling both landline and cell phones. Among the entire sample, 31% described themselves as Democrats, 27% described themselves as Republicans, and 42% described themselves as independents or members of another party.

All respondents were asked questions concerning basic demographics, and the entire sample was weighted to reflect national Census figures for gender, race, age, education, region of country, and telephone usage.

Crosstabs on the following pages only include results for subgroups with enough unweighted cases to produce a sampling error of +/- 8.5 percentage points or less. Some subgroups represent too small a share of the national population to produce crosstabs with an acceptable sampling error. Interviews were conducted among these subgroups, but results for groups with a sampling error larger than +/-8.5 percentage points are not displayed and instead are denoted with "NA".

CNN/ORC International Poll -- April 22 to 25, 2017

Question 24
As you may know, on a regular basis, Congress must pass bills that authorize the federal government to spend money. When that legislation expires, the government must shut down until Congress passes a new spending bill. Suppose the federal government had to shut down this Friday because Congress did not pass a new spending bill. Would you view a government shutdown as a crisis, as a major problem, as a minor problem, or as not a problem at all?
